THE LEE STATUE MEASURE

It Only Requires the Governor's Signature to Become a Law-Bland Firemen's Relief Bill Also Goes Through

The session of the House yesterday was full of life and interest. A number of bills of more or less local importance were offered and referred and the bill to authorize the placing of a statue of General R. E. Lee in the Statuary Hall at Washington was passed amid an impressive silence, not a word of debate being uttered. The vote on the passage of the bill was: Ayes, 4; noes, 7.

Mr. Newhouse reported from the Committee on Prisons and Asylums a bill re-

Mr. Newhouse reported from the Committee on Prisons and Asylums a bill relating to the management of the penitentiary as amended by the Constitution, and it was ordered printed.

Three interesting bills then came up and were either engressed or passed. One was to appropriate $2,000 to enforce the Glass pure food bill and the other was the Bland firement's relief measure. Both of these were passed by safe majorities. The other was the Caton bill to protect birds and their nests and eggs, and it was engrossed after a hard fight by a vote of 40 to 11.

The remainder of the session was devoted to clearing the calendar and to a discussion of the bills to annex property to cities and towns, the latter going over without action.

Mr. Kelley offered the Senate bill as a substitute for the Gardner measure, and he and Mr. Gardner made opening statements for their respective measures. The Gardner bill provides for popular elections and the other for the jurisdiction of non-resident circuit judges. The former was reported from the House Committee and the latter has passed the Senate.

The latter measure shortens the open season thirty days at the opening and fifteen days at the end. The closed season fixed on the bill commences April 1st and ends September 15th.

The entire session of the Senate was devoted to discussing the bill to require osteopaths, Christian Scientists and all other healors to stand examination before the State Board of Medical Examiners, and after being amended in some minor particulars, it was ordered to its engrossment. This means that the bill will pass practically as it was offered will pass practically as it was offered

Before the osteopath bill was taken up, Mr. Lyle succeeded in getting his bill passed, to allow cities and towns to issue bonds to satisfy outstanding obligations.

o'clock. The whole space back of the railing was occupied by spectators.
There were men and women, old and young, rich and poor, there. Before reaching the special order Senator Lyis succeeded in having his bill passed to authorize municipal corporation to issue bonds to redeem outstanding obligations.
There was a great sitr throughout the Senate Chamber when Clerk Button
read what is known as the Harvey bill, which lays down stringent rules for the licensing of persons to practice medicine and surgery in this State. This is the act that is being so energetically fought by the Osteopaths and Christian Scientists. Ex-Governor O'Ferrail occupied a seat on the floor.
MR. HARVEY'S ADDRESS.
Mr. Harvey, the handsomest man in

Mr. Harvey, the handsomest man in he Senate, who seldom has anything o say, but when he does talk, it is say, but when he does talk, it is ways to the point, started the great ill to rolling by offering an amend-int, which was finally adopted, exempting from the operations of the act those Osteopaths holding di-plomas who were practicing in this State prior to the first of January,

Mr. McIlwaine jumped up at once and said he intended to vote for the Osteo-paths, but if they were going to hrow some of their people overboard, he would vote against the whole thing. Mr. Harvey, in reply, said that this amendment was offered after due con-amendment and a sideration. There had come into the State certain Osteopaths, and they had acquired a logal status. It was thought that it would be unjust to them to drive them out.

Proceeding in his argument, Mr. Harvey said that it had been charged that there was jealousy at the bottom of this whole matter. He denied it. He said that the medical men themselves were the very people who, in 1885, asked the passage of an act providing for the examination of surgeons and physicians. In this connection he read the following letter, which explains itself:

DR. JOHNSTON'S LETTER. Richmond, Va., March 3, 1003. Senator E. J. Harvey, Senate Chamber,

City.

Dear Sir,—The necessity for a law regulating the practice of medicine in Virginia was first recognized by the medical men themselves. They proposed such a law and were chiefly instrumental in the massage in 1885.

By Mr. Whitehead: To amend an act to extend the corporate limits of the city of Norfolk.

By Mr. Churchman: To validate acknowledgments taken by an officer of company for such company.

By various members: Pelitions praying the passage of the Mann bill.

When the Lee statue of limits of designed to place a statue of General Lee in the rotunda of the National Capitol, it was passed without debate by a vote of 44 to 7.

Mr. Newhouse, on behalf of the Committee on Prisons and Asylums, made a final report on the former branch of the dominities's work, and thus the member from Culpeper was the first chairman to complete the work assigned to him.

When the bill to appropriate $2,000 to enforce the Glass pure food came up, it was urged earnestly by Mr. Churchman, Mr. Byan Chr. West in the chair) and Mr. Jennings asked a number of questions. The bill was advocated by Messrs. Baker, of Chesterfield, and Newhouse, of Culpeper, and Mr. Hunley also spoke in its favor.

Captain J. H. Redwood, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the State Firemen's Association, placed bouquet of beautiful flowers upon the desk of Hon. Charles T, Bland, as an evidence of their appreciation of his work in getting the Fireman's Relief bill through the House.

The bill to make effective the Glass pure food law was then passed upon a roll-call—ayes, 57; noes, 4.

When Mr. Caton's bill to protect song birds came up. Mr. Smith, of Clarke, spoke carnestly for the measure, and was cheered by the House.

The bill was offered by Mr. Cardwell in a strong speech. The discussion took a very amusing turn, and all kind of birds, including kildees and pee-wees, were referred to, and fishing worms and cit worms were likewise discussed.

Mr. C. C. Baker opposed the bill, and some one desired to know "who killed cock robin?"

The bill was advocated by Mr. Murrell held that it was inoporative as to them.

If the "Harvey bill" should pass without providing exemption for them, it would work a hardship on them that we of the committee cannot approve, and as a matter of justice to these practitioners, the Committee of the Medical Society of Virginia hopes that such an amendment will carry.

Very respectfully,

GEORGE BEN. JOHNSTON,
Chairman of the Committee from the Medical Society of Virginia.

With the reading of this letter, Mr. Harvey concluded his opening remarks.

SAVED HIS MAN.

Mr. Mann next got up and offered an amendment, the substance of which was to strike out the provision as to diploma, He said thefe was one osteopath in the State holding no diploma, but was a man of splendid reputation. Judge Mann saw no reason for the exclusion of this person. The Judge took occasion to express his high regard for the medical society and pitched a nice little bouquet at Dr. George Ben Johnston, who stood behind the railling.

Mr. Harvey accepted this amendment. Mr. Mann's Osteopath was saved. The companion act, the one that most seriously affects the Christian Scientists, was next read.

CROMWELLUS aMENDMENT. cock robin?"
The bill was advocated by Mr. Murrell in a brief but strong speech.
Mr. Lee spoke for the bill, and made an effort which set the House wild with delight. He declared that down in King William, where he some times visited, a mocking bird awakened him in time for breakfast by singing "Julep! Julep!! So sweet! So sweet!!
Mr. Caton spoke elequently for his bill, and took largely the sentimental side of

Mr. Caton spoke eloquently for his bill, and took largely the sentimental side of the proposition.

By a vote of 40 to 11 the bill was ordered to its engrossment, and the Bland Fireman's Relief Bill was passed upon roll-call ayes, 52; noes, 10.

The House loudly choored when the announcement of the vote was made, and a number of pairs were announced.

ANNEXATION BILLS.

The Gardner Annexation bill came up now as a special order, and Mr. Kelley offered the Anderson bill, passed by the Senate, as a substitute. The former provides for submitting the various propositions relating to the annexation of property adjacent to cities and towns to popular vote and the latter gives the jur-isdiction to non-resident dircuit judges. The bill and the substitute were read by the clerk, and then speeches were in order.

Mr. Gardner took the floor, and made an earnest and eloquent plea for the measure offered by himself and amended by the committee.

The young Henrico representative declared in his opening remarks that the lines were clearly drawn between the two bills, and that the counties stood upon the one side and the cities and towns upon the other.

He said the Senate bill proposed to place the whole matter in the bosom of a court, while his bill left the important questions to a vote of the people.

KELLEY ASKS OUESTIONS.

Mr. Kelley asked Mr. Gardner a num-

Mr. Harvey accepted this amendment.
Mr. Mann's Osteopath was saved. The companion act, the one that most seriously affects the Christian Scientists, was next read.

CROMWELL'S AMENDMENT.
Mr. Cromwell introduced an amendment, which Mr. Harvey said practically exempted the Christian Scientists. He said that it would be argued by some that this bill would undermline the great principle of religious freedom. He denied it. He said that the bill would not affect those who did not charge for their services, but it ought to apply to those who should go and pray for the healing and charge so much for each "pray." Mr. Harvey stated that the draftsman of the bill had no idea of interfering with the Christian Scientists when the act was written, and no purpose whatever of interfering woth the religious liberties of any one.

MR. SALE'S VIEWS.

Mr. Sale believed this proposed legislation was treading on dangerous ground.
He thought Mr. Harvey's argument illogical. "We pay preachers," said he, "and contribute to all sorts of religious purposes. Why interfere with a class of good, cdnscientious people? If you want to drive the Christian Scientists out of the State why not offer a bill to accomplish that specific purpose? Don't attempt to do it by indirection."

While Mr. Tyler was making one of his old-fashioned, plain and to the point arguments in favor of this bill, there occurred one of the incidents of the day.

MR. WICKHAM'S QUESTION,

MR. WICKHAM'S QUESTION,

Mr. Watkins and Mr. Wickham got into a very spicy little debate, Mr. Wickham wanted to know the status of the Christian Scientists. Mr. Watkins said they claimed to be able to heal by prayer,

"Then, I would like to know if the converse of the proposition is true? Do they claim to be able to make sick and to kill by prayer?" asked Mr. Wickham.

This was a protty hot shot that Mr.
Wickham flashed at the Prince Edward Senator, but Mr. Watkins faced him with the air of a man who says, "you never touched me."

Mr. Wickham flashed the lefa that this thin ber of questions, and it became evident that the brilliant Richmond lawyer and orator would be pitted against Mr. Gardner in the great controversy. Mr. Gardner discussed both bills at some length and with characteristic ability, and said an attempt was being made here to rain down the throats of the country people something which they did not want.

He declared that so momentous questions as those involved would not have been left to a man as wise as Solomon, to say nothing of human judges of the present age.

Mr. Kelley made a very strong opening statement for the Benate bill and was listened to with marked attention. He contended that it was best for all parties that the measure advocated by himself should pass, and he declared that there was no issue here between the city and country members. At the conclusion of Mr. Kelley's speech the House adjourned until 10 o'clock to-day.

SENATE BILLS PASSED.

self. The whole object of the measure was to protect the children and other innocents.

Sald Mr. Tyler: "I we are going to let a child die upon the highway because her mother refuses the remedies tested by ages, and prays for the little one's recovery; refuses medical aid and we do not interfere because of a fear of treading upon the principle of religious freedom, where will it end? Where will we draw the line against fanaticism?"

Mr. Tyler said standing here in the twentieth ceritury he was pained to have to argue against myths and things that the civilized world had long since discarded. He said that we might laughingly talk of mistakes made by doctors, but he declared that these poople represented the very best of our citizensh p and when they come here and ask us to perfect the bill so as to protect the public health we ought to respect their wishes.

VIEWS OF A PREACHER.

Mr. Harman, a minister of the Gospel, said that if believing in healing by prayers made him a Christian Scientist, he was one. He stated that the ladies and gentlemen who came before the committee had the word of the Divine Healer for the faith that is in them.

Mr. Harman was subjected to a good deal of good-natured cross-fire and held up his end of the controversy mighty well.
